The project aimed to transform the former Grenoble Courthouse into an urban community facility to promote culture and tourism – a prestigious tool in terms of welcoming visitors and sending out a strong image. Today, the aim is to render the site attractive, and to encourage residents to use it so that they can take ownership of this historic building in the town centre. The site hosts a cafe/restaurant, a hotel, the Tourist Office, the Heritage Centre, the Justice and Human Rights Museum, the Institute for Political Studies and the Salon.
